Members of Chicago high school board of athletic control have voted to continue activities in all branches of sport throughout the remainder of the school year. Whether the football schedule will be played through next fall is speculative. The faculty directors held that scholastic sport was a form of physical preparedness that was needed by the young men of the nation.

Mike McDermot, Illinois A. C., for the fourth consecutive time won the 200-yard national A. A. U. breast stroke swimming championship at Pittsburgh, setting a new record of 2:39 4-5, five seconds better than the old record. L. B. White, Hamilton club, Chicago, was second.

Rocky Kansas was given credit for outpointing Lightweight Champion Freddie Welsh in ten rounds at Buffalo, though Welsh appeared to have all the power necessary when called upon. He was content to let Kansas fall out in front, pulling him down when he seemed to be making too much headway.

EDDIE CICOTTE STEADIEST OF WHITE SOX PITCHERS

By Mark Shields

Eddie Cicotte is getting along in years and his major league career covers an extended period, but the little knuckle ball curver is at present time one of the best bets the White Sox have. Unfortunately, his age and small stature may prevent him working every fourth day on the mound. He needs more rest than the majority of the South Side hurlers. But on the days he does perform the opposition can be assured of a regular battle.

For Eddie is a pitcher with control and brains. Many pitchers have more natural stuff on the ball than Cicotte and some of them are right on the South Side. But they haven't the mental qualifications to make them as effective as Cicotte. To beat the Browns yesterday he was forced to pitch carefully, for several times he was in a hole. At the critical moments he put the ball across the plate, but never over the center and never where the alien batters appeared to desire it.

Were Eddie more powerful physically he would be an ideal rescue pitcher, for he has unlimited confidence. It makes no difference to him whether he inherits from another pitcher a set of stocked bases. He pitches with cold nerve. Should some of the other men come to form in short order it is possible Cicotte will be held in reserve as a lifesaver. This was the role Reb Russell played last year, but the Texas southpaw needs considerable rescuing himself this spring.

Good baseball has so far been impossible on the South Side, not only because of the soft condition of the ground, but because of the high winds which have made it next to impossible for the players to judge
